

MIDLOTHIAN COUNCIL ARCHIVES

MIDLOTHIAN CEMETERIES COLLECTION 1834 – 1997

GB584/MC

Name of creator

Midlothian Council and predecessor authorities.

Administrative history

Like other areas of Scotland, Midlothian has a variety of burial places. Each parish had its own churchyard where burials took place. Until 1854, burials were recorded by the local Church of Scotland minister in the Parish Registers. By the mid-nineteenth century, many churchyards were full and burial had become a public health concern, especially following various outbreaks of disease. In the second half of the century, some existing burial places in Midlothian were extended or new, municipal cemeteries were opened. Responsibility for burial grounds, including churchyards, was placed on parish councils under the 1894 Local Government (Scotland) Act, and on the districts of county councils under the 1929 Local Government (Scotland) Act, then post-1975 district councils, and now, since 1996, unitary local authorities.

Scope and content

The principal interest in the collection is a series of lair books and cemetery registers that record individual burials in local cemeteries. In general, these are listed by date order, although some books have a surname index. The collection is not comprehensive and some local cemeteries and burial places are not covered. There are also some records of lair purchase and lair-holders. In addition, there is a series of cemetery maps and plans which show the location of sections and lairs. These are invaluable for locating an individual grave. There are also some minute books produced by cemetery committees recording the creation and maintenance of individual cemeteries.

Acquisition history

These records were acquired by Midlothian Council from its predecessor authorities.

Access

There are no restrictions on access to the collection.

Conditions governing use

None.

Allied materials

Burials before 1855 were recorded by Church of Scotland ministers in the Old Parish Registers (OPRs). Lothians Family History Society are producing indexes of the OPRs and copies of the completed indexes are available in Midlothian Local Studies.

Recording Angels are a Midlothian voluntary group who are recording monumental inscriptions and other information about burial in local cemeteries. Recording Angels are producing guides to each cemetery which record burials, monumental inscriptions and other information. Copies of the completed guides are available in Midlothian Local Studies.

Local Studies holds numerous photographs of headstones in local cemeteries.

The Cemetery Administration Department of Midlothian Council holds information on 'open' cemeteries.

Book: Islay Donaldson Midlothian Gravestones (Loanhead, 1994).

| MC/6 | Dalkeith Churchyards and CemeteriesThe oldest place of burial in Dalkeith is St Nicholas's Churchyard at the east end of Dalkeith High Street towards Dalkeith Palace. In 1796, a new cemetery was opened in the centre of Dalkeith on Old Edinburgh Road. This second cemetery is variously known as the New Cemetery or New Burial Ground, the West End Cemetery or the 'Watchtower', as it has a watchtower to deter body-snatchers.In 1877, a new municipal cemetery was opened on Eskbank Road. This is known as the New Cemetery or the 'Water-tower' as the Dalkeith water-tower overlooks it. An adjoining cemetery was opened in 1919, which confusingly is also known as the New Cemetery. The Water-tower Cemetery contains lairs A-K and the New Cemetery lairs L-U. Burials continued to take place in the older cemeteries after the newer ones had been opened.36 items. | 1862 – 1987  |
