5:20pm	A carried out another exercise with the young people where they followed her story, to draw a dog. Then done the same exercise with the young people with the plates on their heads to show them that if they do not tell the full story the social worker/other corporate parent can't help them to their full potential.	All
6pm	A began talking to the young people about their priorities, both negatives and positives. This was a good exercise for them to get down everything that they want to about the issues. We then narrowed the negative ones down to one thing we would like to change straight away. These were; Education- "teachers should understand what it is like to be care experienced" Health – "take me more seriously- mental health" Love – "social workers take too long to help me with things" Housing – "I've never stayed on my own before, I need everything explained to me fully" Employment – "travel is so expensive, why is everything so far away?" These will be compared with out ones from the work done at pathways before we decide the final questions we ask the professionals to take away.	All

6:30pm	The young people told me that they were not happy about the priorities names, Education, Employment, Housing, Health and Love. They would like Love to be changed to Care, Communication and Relationships and health to be changed to Health and safety!	All
